Brief companion exams are created for three of the most influential articles from each issue. By reading the articles and completing the online exams, you can test your knowledge and earn up to 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ per article. Correct answers are highlighted for your reference upon completion of the course. A link from the question to the correct answer in context will also be highlighted in the associated article, thus extending the learning experience.

CME credit is only provided online, and a subscription to the AJP CME program is required. From the moment you subscribe to the AJP CME program, you will be able to select from 72 courses from among 40 possible subject areas. You'll also be able to access the next 33 courses as they become available. For more information and pricing, please go to <http://cme.psychiatryonline.org/misc/aboutajpcme.shtml>

This activity is sponsored by the American Psychiatric Association. The American Psychiatric Association is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians. The American Psychiatric Association designates each educational activity for a maximum of 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

In This Issue

Ongoing Internet and social media revolution, discoveries of newer psychopharmacologic agents, and a diversifying U.S. population underscore the need for continuously updating and validating psychiatry residency curricula. An immense undertaking of this sort usually begins with the small step of describing the issues at hand. Thus, it is fitting that the last issue of this academic year's Residents' Journal includes articles on psychosocial functioning in pediatric bipolar disorder (Arman Danielyan, M.D.), psychopharmacology education (Ragy Girgis, M.D.), the effect of social media on mental health (Erin L. Belfort, M.D.), and religion and spirituality in residency training programs (Mary E. Camp, M.D.). I sincerely hope that these contributions will initiate a dialogue about the need for timely revitalization of residency curricula with changes that are reflective of current times.

Graham Foster (b. 1970).
The Mechanics of Addiction (2010).
Acrylic on wood 40" x 40"

Graham Foster is a Bermudan painter and sculptor. He writes:

"Some years ago I began a series of paintings inspired by addiction, after helping a close friend overcome the trauma of their addiction. I wanted to capture the inner workings of the mind in this state, and the "devil inside" triggering various forms of addiction. Some of these paintings have a sculptural quality about them – rather like a dissected automaton or robot – reflecting our potential lack of control, even against our better judgement, as a proclivity to addiction lies just below the surface.

For more information on the artist please visit www.grahamfoster.com

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Dr Allan Beveridge, British Journal of Psychiatry, 17 Belgrave Square, London SW1X 8PG, UK or bjp@rcpsych.ac.uk.
