An essential digital companion to the DSM-5™

NEW! – Now Spanish language supported!

DSM-5™ Diagnostic Criteria Mobile App

American Psychiatric Association

The DSM-5™ Diagnostic Criteria Mobile App is designed to help mental health practitioners, researchers and students fully integrate the new DSM criteria and codes into their practice and study. Users have full offline access to all of the criteria sets as well as online access to supporting videos, commentary and resources. Powerful search and customization tools aid and enhance assessment of symptom presentations in a variety of clinical and administrative settings. It features:

- Access to the complete DSM-5 diagnostic criteria sets on your phone and tablet
- Up to date access to ICD-9-CM and ICD-10-CM codes for clinical and administrative use
- Video commentary from the DSM-5 task force members highlighting changes from DSM-IV to DSM-5
- Robust disorder, acronym, code and symptom search functionality
- Bookmarking allows customization of the criteria sets most commonly referenced

Available for both iOS and Android compatible devices through the iTunes store and Android market.

As the DSM-5™ Diagnostic Criteria Mobile App is only available for sale through the iTunes and Android stores, it is not possible for us to extend our traditional APA Member or APA Member-in-Training discounts on the purchase of this product.

There's So Much More to AJP Than Meets the Page!

Visit The American Journal of Psychiatry's website on PsychiatryOnline for the following features!

AJP in Advance

The very latest research advances!

At AJP in Advance, you can discover the following before their appearance in print:

Maternal Influenza Exposure and Bipolar Disorder in Adult Offspring

Substantial research has documented an association between prenatal exposure to infection and schizophrenia, and this study found serologically documented maternal influenza exposure was also associated with a fivefold greater risk of bipolar disorder, but only with psychotic features. These results may suggest that prenatal influenza is a risk factor for psychosis rather than for a specific psychotic disorder.

Comparing Psychological Interventions for Psychosis

After six psychological interventions for psychosis were compared across 48 outcome trials, some small but reliable differences in efficacy were found. Cognitive-behavioral therapy was more successful than befriending, cognitive remediation, psychoeducation, and supportive counseling in treating positive symptoms, but not as effective as social skills training for negative symptoms.

AJP CME

Three articles in this issue form the basis of a short course with questions that can be answered for up to 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ each by visiting <http://psychiatryonline.org/cme.aspx> and clicking on the “American Journal of Psychiatry” tab.

CME credit is issued only online, and a paid subscription to AJP CME course program is required. This month's courses appear on pages 475–478.

Have You Heard?

With AJP Audio you can listen to highlights of this issue. This month, Deputy Editor Susan Schultz discusses gender differences in the pathways to major depression, the NIMH Research Domain Criteria, treatment of heavy drinking with topiramate, computer-assisted delivery of CBT, and head injuries as a risk factor for psychiatric disorders.

In This Issue

This issue of the Residents' Journal begins with a commentary by Matthew Goldenberg, D.O., on tobacco abuse and smoking cessation and the role of psychiatry in identifying treatment options. Vijeta Kushwaha, M.B.B.S., M.D., discusses medication nonadherence and provides important information on measuring adherence, factors affecting adherence, and improving adherence. In their article, Rohit Madan, M.D., and Nathan Bruce, D.O., focus on the relationship between Parkinson's disease and impulse control disorders. Amita D. Mehta, M.D., presents findings of a preliminary study of stigma toward mental illness in an Indian American population. Last, Stefania Prendes-Alvarez, M.D., M.P.H., and Samantha Block, M.D., report a case of recurrent, undiagnosed catatonia in an elderly patient.

THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY

The most widely read psychiatric journal in the world!

The American Journal of Psychiatry (AJP) latest Impact Factor is 14.721, a nearly 2 point rise from last year's 12.759 according to the recently released 2012 Journal Citation Reports® (Thomson Reuters, 2013). AJP, a publication of the American Psychiatric Association, ranks second among 135 journals in psychiatry.

- The American Journal of Psychiatry is again among the top journals in psychiatry in terms of immediacy according to Thomson Scientific's Immediacy Index. This important performance metric is a good measure of how quickly a given journal's articles are cited—AJP's placement is a result of publishing articles that are relevant, covering current “hot” topics and cutting-edge research, and getting these findings to the field faster with AJP in Advance, the Journal's online-ahead-of-print publication protocol.
- And, as it has for many years, AJP remains far and away the leader among psychiatric publications in total citations. Its 42,730 citation count was almost 5,000 citations above the next publication.
- The editors of NEJM Journal Watch Psychiatry announced the 10 top psychiatry stories in 2013, and SIX were based on articles published in The American Journal of Psychiatry! That the majority of the list's selections came from AJP reflects the journal's commitment to publishing articles that deliver clinically important information to the field.

Here are the stories, along with the issue in which the original article appeared:

- Prazosin for PTSD Symptoms and Nightmares in Active-Duty Combat Soldiers (September 2013)
- Varenicline: Fewer Adverse Events Than Previously Thought (December 2013)
- The Question of Ketamine in Treatment-Resistant Depression (October 2013)
- Folate for Treatment-Resistant Depression (December 2012)
- Higher-Dose Citalopram and the FDA Warnings: Not Much to Worry About? (June 2013)

In Comfort (2007). Gela Jincharadze (b. 1965). Acrylic on hardboard

Gela Jincharadze has painted from childhood when his native Georgia was under Soviet control; his first public exhibition was staged when he was only 5 years old. Gela's passion for painting and distinctive style stem from his country's lively and constantly evolving tradition of visual art.

Gela chose to study medicine and entered the Tbilisi State University in 1983. However, his studies were curtailed in his third year by a long and severe depressive illness. Continuing to paint in hospital, he gradually returned to health and built a new career as a painter.

Gela now enjoys a strong association with the Gldani psychiatric hospital in Tbilisi where he is a leading member of the very active art therapy programme. His paintings have been exhibited throughout Georgia and Europe.

For more information on Gela's work see <http://gela2010.wix.com/paintings#>

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Dr Allan Beveridge, British Journal of Psychiatry, 21 Prescot Street, London E1 8BB, UK or bjp@rcpsych.ac.uk.
