THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY

The most widely read psychiatric journal in the world!

The American Journal of Psychiatry (AJP) latest Impact Factor is 14.721, a nearly 2 point rise from last year's 12.759 according to the recently released 2012 Journal Citation Reports® (Thomson Reuters, 2013). AJP, a publication of the American Psychiatric Association, ranks second among 135 journals in psychiatry.

- The American Journal of Psychiatry is again among the top journals in psychiatry in terms of immediacy according to Thomson Scientific's Immediacy Index. This important performance metric is a good measure of how quickly a given journal's articles are cited—AJP's placement is a result of publishing articles that are relevant, covering current “hot” topics and cutting-edge research, and getting these findings to the field faster with AJP in Advance, the Journal's online-ahead-of-print publication protocol.
- And, as it has for many years, AJP remains far and away the leader among psychiatric publications in total citations. It's 42,730 citation count was almost 5,000 citations above the next publication.
- The editors of NEJM Journal Watch Psychiatry announced the 10 top psychiatry stories in 2013, and SIX were based on articles published in The American Journal of Psychiatry! That the majority of the list's selections came from AJP reflects the journal's commitment to publishing articles that deliver clinically important information to the field.

Here are the stories, along with the issue in which the original article appeared:

- Prazosin for PTSD Symptoms and Nightmares in Active-Duty Combat Soldiers (September 2013)
- Varenicline: Fewer Adverse Events Than Previously Thought (December 2013)
- The Question of Ketamine in Treatment-Resistant Depression (October 2013)
- Folate for Treatment-Resistant Depression (December 2012)
- Higher-Dose Citalopram and the FDA Warnings: Not Much to Worry About? (June 2013)
- Do Antipsychotics Hasten Poor Outcomes in Patients with Alzheimer Disease? (September 2013)

Untitled (1996). Gerhard Beck (b. 1951)

After undergoing a Jungian psychoanalysis in 1995, I suddenly started drawing, which might have been the desire to express myself in pictures rather than words. In 1999, I was given a diagnosis of ADHD and Asperger syndrome. I was surprised and shocked at first, but I also felt a sense of relief because I now had an explanation for the many problems I had experienced throughout my life, such as depression, anxiety, loneliness, shyness, poor social skills and a preoccupation with only a narrow range of interests. I was prescribed methylphenidate for my attention problems, but unfortunately this brought about a paranoid psychosis and I had to spend a year in a psychiatric hospital. All my drawings are created spontaneously, the images having their origin in my unconscious.

We are always looking for interesting and visually appealing images for the cover of the Journal and would welcome suggestions or pictures, which should be sent to Dr Allan Beveridge, British Journal of Psychiatry, 21 Prescot Street, London E1 8BB, UK or bjp@rcpsych.ac.uk.
